

Hi friend,

I'm so glad you signed up for Buying a Home Together: How to Co-Buy With Friends or Family the Right Way. I'll be one of the hosts for the workshop, and I'm genuinely excited for this conversation!

For so long, buying a home with friends or family was treated like a terrible idea. But the reality is... a lot of people are already doing it successfully. And for many buyers today, co-buying is becoming one of the most realistic ways to get into homeownership sooner.

I've personally co-bought a handful of times over the years. Some with friends, some with family, and one with my partner. So this conversation is very personal to me, and I'm excited to share both the practical side of co-buying and the lessons I've learned along the way!

A little more about Joynt, the company I work with, we're a platform (like how Airbnb is a platform) that helps people through all of the stages of co-buying (buying a house with friends and family)! And make sure you go about it all in the right way that protects the friendship and asset. The platform is free to join and here are some of my favorite tools we have at the moment:

Feel free to hop on and explore before the webinar if you'd like! I'm really excited to talk through everything I've learned from my own experiences and help you figure out whether co-buying could be the right move for you too!

P.S. Your Zoom link will become available on your Eventbrite confirmation page 20 minutes before the event starts. We'll also send a few reminder emails leading up to the event with a direct link back to that page so it's easy to find when it's time to join!

Best,
